MILITARY COURT PROBES CAVE STORY

OPEN HEARING
BEGINS WHILE
SHAFT IS SUNK

Radio Tests Show Collins
May Still Be Rescued
Alive.

Cave City, Ky., Feb. 10.—Under executive order of Governor William J. Fields, public sessions of the military court opened here today to inquire into the circumstances surrounding the attempted rescue of Floyd Collins from Sand Cave where he has been imprisoned since Friday, January 30.

This is a morale-building move. Since rumors first began to circulate freely as to incidents occurring during the early days of the finding of Floyd's entombment, it has become apparent that some action to allay the suspicions of the public as to the facts in the case was essential. It was this point in view that the military tribunal, which might sit in secret sessions as a grand jury does, obtained permission to make its investigation a public hearing.

Meantime hope that the shaft, the last resort, would reach Collins before his death, was visibly shaken today when efforts to find another entryway into the passage where he lies in a rock-shroud, became frenzied in their intensity. The shaft has been sunk about 35 feet, with approximately as much still to be excavated. Workers were disengaged with the maddening slowness. Radio tests were taken recently, as much as to encourage those laboring as to determine whether Collins is still living.

These tests, according to experts and physicians, indicated that despite long imprisonment Collins may yet be rescued alive.

Work on the shaft was pressed with all possible speed, however, but the cry of those in the pit is "We want Floyd Collins, alive!"

Hence, each new fissure unearthed, raises the hopes of the diggers. And, as each proves to be only a crack of fault, the despondency deepens. In the military tribunal, all witnesses save one—and that one singled out by hearsay and circumstances as the person most vitally concerned—were called to tell of their entry into the cave. Several, among them Lieutenant Robert Burden of the Louisville fire department, William Burke Miller, newspaper reporter, and Homer Collins, Floyd's brother, were to tell of their conversations with Floyd and the conditions of the narrow passage way during their various trips.

But John Gerald, the man who assumed control of the rescue work because of his asserted friendship with the entombed man, will not be asked to come before the court and give his version of the entire affair. And neither will he have an opportunity to reply to the various accusations against him.

The reason for this, it was said, was because Gerald would be the principal witness and the most important factor in the clearing of the air of insinuations that Collins was a victim not only of nature's wrath, but of man's greed as well, was suggested in the statement of Lieut. Gov. H. H. Denhardt that no person is "called before a court to testify against himself."

While the first organization and hearings are being held in Cave City, the inquiry court will adjourn later to the rim of the pit where the work of digging, for a still presumed living man continues, and complete its sessions in the grim shadows of hoisting derrick and screeching drill.

The native is truculent and resentful of the drama which has made his country the focal point for a world's eyes. Owing to the misunderstanding of the functions of the military court, the conception has rapidly grown that every man and woman is going to find himself or herself in jail in short order.

Somewhat the fact that Collins lies buried and perhaps still alive no longer holds its original potency. The cataract of emotion has become only a ripple of mild interest.

The hill folk have had all they wanted of new fangled notions and habits. They want to settle down to their routine of work and leisure. To the impenetrable non-communion between individuals everything has become too involved.

What, with soldiers walking guard beneath their moon, and on their hillsides, what with speed where only a slow gait previously had been necessary, the natives are growing exceedingly restless and unhappy.

Yes, they wish it was over. Certainly hoping that Floyd is found alive—but over at any cost.

Congress Split Over Aircraft Battle

MITCHELL MADE TARGET OF HOT VERBAL ATTACK

Naval Affairs Committee Takes Hand In Controversy Now

Washington, Feb. 10.—Congress took sides today and flung itself anew into the aircraft "battle" started by Brigadier General William Mitchell's charges against the war and navy departments.

While the house aircraft investigating committee before which the "flying general" testified, was preparing to come to his defense a verbal bomb was flung in his direction at a meeting of the house naval affairs committee.

The naval committee was drawn into the fight by Representative Britten of Illinois, who followed a vigorous defense of Admiral Moffet, the naval flying chief, by charging Mitchell with "very bad form" in attacking officials of the navy department.

"Mitchell," said Britten, "is an outstanding figure, but he doesn't know it all and the quicker he realizes it the better for aviation."

I have no objection to Mitchell telling all he knows about aviation generally and about the war department and army officers in particular, but I think his reference to the veracity of naval officers and their intimidation by their superiors came in very bad form and will do him no good."

Britten took a swing at the army's pet hobby of a unified air service, consideration of which by congress has stirred up the present fuss.

"Mitchell is confusing aviation efficiency with national defense," Britten said, "and while his suggestion for a unified service might promote efficiency in some directions, it would tend to destroy offensive and defensive action in a highly specialized department like the navy."

The national defense is of much greater importance than increased efficiency in delivering mail by air or by promotion of commercial aviation.

Britten's attack stirred up new agitation in the aircraft committee for passage of a resolution which would absolve Mitchell from all blame for any statements he made reflecting on other government officials. The committee is expected to pass a resolution now being drafted by one member, which would shift responsibility for Mitchell's statements from the "flying general" to the committee itself.

The testimony of these men will follow a day of testimony from Rev. Thomas P. Hayden, formerly chaplain at the prison, in which he testifies to having received $2,100 of one bribe paid by a group of bootleggers sent to the prison from Savannah.

Father Hayden testified he arranged for a meeting between Will Haar, one of the prisoners, before the convicted men ever were sent here. It was understood, he said, that the men were to be allowed special kitchen privileges and were to have the softest jobs that could be found for them.

One of them, he said, was to be assigned to his office. Haar told him, he said, that the group of Savannah men were especially desirous of escaping confinement in cells.

PRISONERS WILL TESTIFY IN TRIAL OF ATLANTA WARDEN

Former Chaplain Is Questioned On Stand For Full Day.

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 10.—Prisoners of the U. S. penitentiary here, who are alleged by the government to have given bribes in return for special favors to be taken the stand today in the second day of the trial of A. E. Sartain, former warden; L. J. Fletcher, formerly his assistant, and Heine Riehl, on charges of soliciting bribes.

The testimony of these men will follow a day of testimony from Rev. Thomas P. Hayden, formerly chaplain at the prison, in which he testifies to having received $2,100 of one bribe paid by a group of bootleggers sent to the prison from Savannah.

Father Hayden testified he arranged for a meeting between Will Haar, one of the prisoners, before the convicted men ever were sent here. It was understood, he said, that the men were to be allowed special kitchen privileges and were to have the softest jobs that could be found for them.

UNITED STATES NOW PUSHING ENGLAND FOR COMMERCIAL SUPREMACY OF WORLD IS SHOWN

Washington, Feb. 10.—Having already displaced Great Britain as the financial center of the world, the United States is now pushing the English for commercial supremacy.

Comparative trade figures, issued today by the department of commerce disclosed that American business men outstripped their British rivals in 1924 in sending their wares over the earth. Britain's total exports were $4,132,000,000 or $358,000,000 less than America's.

Britain's imports for 1924, $5,653,000,000 surpassed those of this country by $2,000,000,000, her total foreign trade in 1924 having been $9,785,000,000 against $7,820,000,000 for the United States.

Bernard Tarpey, a Boston policeman, and his wife have the figures.

Their new daughter, Marie Veronica, ten months old, has cost them $142.23 since the day the stork left her. The very least a pedigree show dog can be bought for is $150. Here is the upkeep of the coming

ELECTRICAL AND TOBACCO TRUSTS TO BE PROBED UNDER SENATE ORDER

Federal Trade Commission Instructed To Start Investigations That Will Affect Practically Every Home In the Country.

Washington, Feb. 10.—With nearly every home in the nation affected, the federal trade commission was under senatorial instruction today to launch immediate investigations into the activities of the alleged electrical and tobacco trusts.

The electric trust inquiry was directed chiefly at the General Electric Company but it applied far-reaching effect to all its subsidiaries.

If the trust charges are sustained by federal inquiry, Senator Norris, Republican of Nebraska, declared, governmental prosecutions would follow with a resulting decline in present prices.

The field of inquiry, he said, would involve telephones, electricity, lights, lamps and especially in the recently opened field of radio equipment.

Norris and Senator Howell, Republican of Nebraska, charged a working agreement between the General Electric Company, and its principal competitors, Westinghouse Electric and the Western Electric Company through the same individuals and together maintain a monopoly in the electric field.

"This investigation will prove the electric trust is making radio lamps for 26 cents and selling them to the public for $6 apiece," Howell said.

"That is maintaining a monopoly. It affects every home with a radio apparatus and that today means every home in the nation."

The tobacco investigation will center around an alleged "monopoly" agreement between the American Tobacco Company and the Imperial Tobacco Company of Great Britain.

This agreement, according to Sen. Ernst, Republican of Kentucky, excluded the American concern from selling tobacco in Great Britain and the British concern from selling in the United States.

As a result, Ernst charged, a monopoly was created over certain tobacco crops in Virginia, North Carolina and Kentucky, with the tobacco growers in those states derived of a rightful market.

Among the bills scheduled for second reading and reference in the house today are:

By Representative Ball, Scioto County, permitting a court to suspend sentence on a father convicted in juvenile court, so long as he pays for support of minor children and by Representative Krueger, Cuyahoga, authorizing boards of education to appropriate land for schoolhouses, auditoriums and administration buildings.

The testimony of Michael I. Evan, Mingo Junction, supported Miss Wahnhoff's story that Fish had been in the dispensary without permission.

The stories related by Fish, Miss Wahnhoff and Evan agreed that Fish had attempted to get the capsules from Evan and, when he refused, Fish endeavored to obtain them from Miss Wahnhoff. She avoided issuing the medicines, she said, on the plea that she was "busy." Officials today will seek to learn the reason for this roundabout method resorted to by Fish in trying to have the prescription filled.

Fish knows that the capsules obtained for Puskin from the dispensary caused the latter's death, probing officials said today. He explained his failure to inform the authorities of this knowledge, when he was first questioned last week by saying that he feared the notoriety which would follow, it was stated.

Chester said today he proposed to learn why it was that William E. Keyser, who is acknowledged not to be a graduate pharmacist, was in charge of the university dispensary.

By Liles, Huron, giving county commissioners authority to classify county and town roads and to regulate weight of loads which may be hauled over them; by Emmons, Summit, creating a state advisory board of five members, including director of agriculture, dean of the forestry department, O. S. U. state forester and two members named by governor, to direct state reforestation of private lands, and appropriating $25,000 for this purpose.

By Riggs, Gallia, creating Hamilton, Montgomery, Franklin, Lucas, Cuyahoga, Mahoning, Summit and Stark as separate common pleas court district and dividing the remainder of the state into eight districts.

By Emmons, Summit, providing for tuberculosis testing of cattle on a statewide basis.

Both houses are scheduled to convene at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon.

PASSAGE OF TWO CENT GASOLINE TAX PREDICTED

Bill Does Not Change License Rates—New Bills Face Senate

Columbus, O., Feb. 10.—Passage of the Brown two cent gasoline tax bill in the house this afternoon was forecast today by Speaker Silver.

The bill, as before the house, keeps unchanged present annual auto license fees of $8, 12 and $15. The house membership is expected by leaders to be aligned about two to one for passage.

The house motor vehicles committee is expected tonight to report on the Collister home rule amendment to the Collister-Freeman bus law on which action has been delayed for almost two weeks since its passage in the senate.

Speaker Silver said that reciprocity legislation to permit free interstate motor bus traffic between Ohio and adjoining states would be carried in a later bill. A special house committee is expected to draft the bill within a month.

The senate will be faced with a long calendar when it convenes this afternoon. Two bills passed by the house and scheduled for first reading today are:

By Representative Ball, Scioto County, permitting a court to suspend sentence on a father convicted in juvenile court, so long as he pays for support of minor children and by Representative Krueger, Cuyahoga, authorizing boards of education to appropriate land for schoolhouses, auditoriums and administration buildings.

The first members arrived at 5:30 a.m. The Viscount Astor was the first woman to appear. She arrived at 8 a.m.

STRIKERS WRECK MILL IN SHANGHAI

Shanghai, Feb. 10.—Thousands of strikers employed by the Nanking Nawaata cotton mill today stormed the plant, assaulted and drove out the Japanese managers and overseers and wrecked furniture and merchandise valued at $30,000, according to police reports.

Police responded to a riot call but the mob had disappeared when they arrived. They found two Japanese severely injured and many others suffering minor hurts. As a result police guards have been stationed about all Japanese mills.

The strikers alleged their Japanese overseers had habitually beaten them with knotted ropes.

STUDENT COMMITS SUICIDE BECAUSE HE BELIEVED HIMSELF OF NO VALUE TO WORLD

Cincinnati, O., Feb. 10.—Because he was not a "superman," Herman Mallin, a student at Hebrew Union College, late Monday, on his twentieth birthday anniversary, shot and killed himself in a study room at that institution. Mallin, who was studying to be a rabbi and at the same time taking the classical course at the University of Cincinnati, left a note explaining the prediction before he would take any action relative to the request.

WIFE WAS CRUEL

Defiance, Feb. 10.—A divorce was granted to John H. Flory, Adams Township, from Mrs. Zephia J. Flory. He charged his wife had been cruel to him by conspiring to have him cast out from the Dunkard Church. He also accused her of gross neglect.

HOSPITAL IS NOW THE PROPERTY OF CLARK CO. ALONE

County Auditor R. O. Wead, went to Springfield Monday for the purpose of signing the deed that will complete Greene County's share in the transfer of the Tubercular Hospital of Springfield to Clark County. Greene County received $7,965.61 as its share in the institution.

By mutual agreement the ownership of the hospital, until recently jointly owned by Greene, Clark, Madison, and Champaign Counties, was handed over to Clark County, at a recent meeting of commissioners from each county.

"The transfer will benefit Greene County from an economics standpoint," said Herman Eavey, president of the board of commissioners and the release of the hospital to Clark County, in which it is situated, will be a financial burden off the county's shoulders.

"Clark County is more benefitted by the hospital than any of the adjacent counties, as more patients come from that county, which is another reason why the move is justified," said Mr. Eavey.

LITTLE HOUSES

The four walls of a little house can hold a great deal of happiness if love and the disposition to build a home abide therein.

A young married woman with a baby that took much of her time and care said she was discouraged when she thought how little her lifework mattered compared with her husband's business in a factory, where he was a marshal of men.

"He talks of large affairs," she said, "and things I don't know anything about. And every day at luncheon or at other times he seems to meet people with whom he can have men's talk and discuss all sorts of things.

"I meet other women sometimes, at lunch or at card parties, and all they talk about is the inside of the house—their trouble with servants and how they try to bring up their children and how they are having their clothes made."

"My husband's work seems so large and mine is so little,"

But the woman who felt that her life was caged and circumscribed was doing the creative and constructive work of building a home in a little house and she did not realize that in so doing she fulfilled the law of her being and nobly served the race.

It is not just the house made with hands that constitutes the home. It is the environment created herein, which furniture and insensate things cannot supply. Four walls may build a prison or they may mean a temple and a shrine.

This city is full of little houses where pure content abides. The misery that fills the divorce courts and gets into the headlines is so exceptional as to be "news." Most families are bound by ties of tender devotion which the occasional friction or tension of dwelling in close proximity cannot destroy. Most husbands and wives are faithful and loving and indispensable to each other. Books and plays that discolor the universe with sensational misrepresentation, with untrue readings of life, cannot by their lying version efface the fact that most of the people most of the time—living in families, loyal friends, good neighbors, honest citizens—are trying to do right and in the low narrow rooms of little houses are finding space for dreams as lofty as the stars.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

HOAX

It is indicated now that the imprisonment of Floyd Collins in the cave at Cave City, Ky., may be a colossal hoax or a blood curdling murder.

The case itself has aroused human interest and sympathy greater than the heroic efforts put forth in Alaska to rush antitoxin to diphtheria stricken Nome.

It would be grievous offense against the public if the affair has been arranged as a publicity stunt, slapping as it would, at the humanitarian instincts of mankind. The public can be hoaxed part of the time or perhaps part of the public all of the time, but all of the public will not be taken in so grandly on every occasion.

If it should result that the whole thing is a hoax, the odor which would arise will serve to induce America's great-hearted people to keep their hands in their pockets after this, in spite of the gravity of the incident, which would create an unwholesome situation.

HEART

Heart disease has supplanted tuberculosis as the greatest man-killer, according to Dr. Robert H. Halsey, New York.

The statement was made in a paper presented to the American Association for the Advancement of Science in Washington, D. C., and must be given a full measure of credence.

His figures show that heart disease claimed 170,033 lives in 1923 as compared with 105,680 deaths caused by pneumonia and 90,732 caused by tuberculosis in the same period. Comparing present and past rates, the increase in the mortality of heart disease has greatly decreased life expectancy.

The chief point of alarm in the statement is that heart disease usually results from a contributory disease which raises other diseases prominently in the mortality records. "Safety First" campaigns designed to lessen traffic hazards might be directed to private health with just as great results.

JUST FOLKS

Edgar A. Guest

"Come along and follow me
To the land of Used-to-be!"

Come along and let me show you
Love and laughter and delight!

Come, you little children gay,
Where your daddy used to play;

"Tis a fairland of pleasure,
Where the skies are ever bright!"

So I led them gayly back,
Over Time's long, winding track,

To the garden of my boyhood.

Where played my merry games;

And I called that glorious crew

Of glad playmates which I knew,

And we watched them come a-ran-

ning

As I shouted out their names.

"Jim and Fred and Jane and May!

Come, I called, and share our play!

Come, you little bright-eyed Mary!"

Back they came on flying feet:

And we played the old games o'er
As we did in days before,
And I asked my trusting youngsters:
"Was a childhood e'er so sweet?"

Then they gazed in quaint surprise
At the question in my eyes,
And they said: "We, too, are merry.

These are games we also play!

All that used to be for you,

Now in summer-time we do.

You are old, and you've forgotten,

Childhood's just the same today!"

Now add three teaspoons of vanilla to the mixture and begin dipping ripe red apples into it at once, each apple speared on a stick. This is a butterscotch coating. Miss B.: "I have a black suit on which I have spilled a little white enamel. I have tried using alcohol and turpentine but without success. Kindly inform me what to do."

Answer: Gasoline removes paint or enamel, but do not use this fluid near heat or flame as it is extremely inflammable. Also hang the garment outside until the gasoline odor evaporates. If the enamel spot has been on for a considerable time and has had a chance to harden, you may have to soften it by rubbing in a little glycerine and allowing it to stand for perhaps a half hour before applying the gasoline. If you make a ring around the spot with French chalk the glycerine will not spread. Grease will also soften old paint spots.

It can be made smooth by setting it in a pan of ice water and beating with a good egg-beater. This applies only to soft custard or custard sauce.

Suffered Nervous Breakdown

MRS. ELIZABETH ROMSEY

Toledo—"I want to state that there isn't a medicine that can equal Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription as a man's tonic and nervine. I was suffering with womanly ills which caused me to have a severe nervous breakdown. I was so nervous I could not sleep and had no appetite. I had severe backaches and bearing pains. I got so weak I could not do my work—in fact I could not walk across the floor. I was advised to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it completely restored my nerves and health. I grew strong and have never had another attack of this kind. It is perfectly wonderful what 'Favorite Prescription' will do for weak and nervous women."

Today's Talks

ON RETIRING

There is nothing so inspiring as the man who dies in harness. I have never been able to understand why a man wants to retire unless he is anxious to die.

A friend of the elder J. P. Morgan in an intimate talk asked him when he was going to retire.

"When did your father retire?"

"In 1902."

"When did he die?"

"In 1903."

"If he had kept at work," said the banker, "he'd have been living yet!"

J. Pierpont Morgan was always a "bull" on the country. He never broke his word. He was a supreme optimist. A man writing of Morgan in his capacity as organizer of the steel trust said: "He was the blacksmith, and the men who owned the steel mills were the white-hot metal upon which he played with his smashing sledge."

I remember when this great man died. It seemed as though a giant had stopped the wheels of business while he took a rest.

My favorite poem is that of "Ulysses" by Tennyson. I love it because of its story of courage, onwardness and aspiration—to do and dare but not to yield!

Life should grow more precious and more important every day. Happiness lies in our ability to take up new threads and to weave them enterprises that may continue long after our fingers have been silenced and dried again into the dust that gives new nourishment to the flowers of the field.

DISCIPLESHIP IS MISSION BISHOP REESE SAYS HERE

The Rt. Rev. Theodore Irving Reese, assistant moderator bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Southern Ohio, delivered a strong sermon on the word of Christ: "Follow Me" on the occasion of his visit to Christ Episcopal Church here Sunday to confirm a class of candidates in the church.

"In order to follow Christ and 'be loyally to the end' you must lose yourself to a cause—completely enveloped by this purpose," he said. "Now in order to more thoroughly understand this statement let me say that there are two kinds of causes—the good cause and the evil cause. As an example let us take the Cross itself. The geometrical definition of a Cross is two lines that form an intersection. Let us consider the causes as the two lines. They intersect in the form of a cross. They conflict. Where they conflict is the point of suffering, hardship and temptation. Which cause is going to be victorious in our lives? The evil cause or the good cause?"

"Discipleship—that is our mission in life and we can take up this profession in life only by 'losing ourselves' in the cause of Christ. Do not think that we must lose ourselves only in the Church but there are four institutions in which we must be enveloped. They are four of the greatest institutions in the world: the HOME; The home is not the place to feel that you are 'it' that there is no one else but you and that every other member of the family should bow down to you and jump at your bidding. That is the opinion of people in lots of families with whom I have been acquainted. There are others in this world you must think about. The home life should be the greatest life on earth—but how often we find it otherwise. In some homes there is the person whose wishes and desires must be fulfilled without a thought as to the wants of the other person. That is not discipleship. Start in the home, start tomorrow and change your home into one of peace and happiness where the body and soul can rest at peace."

"Then there is the School—a great institution, and the nation. Here we might relate the story of the unknown soldier, one of the greatest stories the world will ever know. His leader said, 'Follow me' and he did. He gave his 'last full measure of devotion.' Such is discipleship. There was patriotism. The nation depended upon him 'to follow' and he obeyed.

"And lastly we have the Church again. Here we must have fellowship and loyalty above all things, to promote the kingdom of God. He has entrusted to us a mission of earth and we must not betray Him. We must follow for those are His words. This does not mean that we follow Him only through the gardens of Galilee, and beside the beautiful waters to gaze at the gorgeousness of the sunrise and sunset; we must follow Him through the mountains and through the dark places, over treacherous slimy rocks, through the caverns and the dens of wild beasts, through temptation and sin we must follow Him for He is the Great Leader. This is the acid test of discipleship. Can we follow where He leads? It is easy to follow as long as the path is level and soft under foot but when the path is rocky and the crevices treacherous, how many can keep pace? How many fall by the wayside no longer able to follow? How many fear death because they could not follow? Happy is he who can lie on his death bed and face death with serenity, a smile on his face and with the words, 'Father, I am ready,' because he has been loyal to the end?"

"I am going to use a baseball expression to illustrate our church people of today—the Christians and those people who start to 'follow.' We have a man at bat. He hits the ball and sends it flying across the field. He reaches first base easily and is enthused over his run. He gets exalted and a little big-headed. Then he steals second and after a while slides to third and then—? What I wanted you to notice was the word slide. Too many people slide where they should walk. That is the trouble with our church goers. At first they are regular attendants, for a couple of services and then they apparently think that they have received all the blessings they can possibly get and begin to slide. They no longer follow. And that is not the kind of a disciple that He wants. He must be loyal to the end."

"One man said to me once, 'Well, if there could be some way to condense Christianity into one, two or three items it would be easier.' That man never knew what Christianity was or he could never have asked me anything so absurd. Christianity is condensed—always has been condensed into two of the greatest words known—"Follow Me."

REAPPRAISAL WILL BE DISCUSSED HERE AT WEDNESDAY MEET

Greene County Commissioners are petitioning the public to remember that Wednesday, February 11, is the date set for the hearing of findings regarding real estate in the county which were submitted to the commissioners by County Auditor R. O. Wead January 26.

Greene County has had no re-appraisal of real estate since 1910, it is said, but it is customary to submit a report of the findings every year.

The commissioners have recourse to three different types of action at the hearing which will be public. They may either act upon the findings, modify them or set them aside. In the latter case, there will be no re-appraisal unless other action is taken.

Auditor Wead declared in his report, that "the assessed valuation on real estate property in the rural districts when taken as a total is not far below its true value in money. However there are many inequalities existing in valuations within all of the taxing districts in the county."

VACCINATION ONLY SUCCESSFUL MEANS OF FIGHTING SMALL POX—TWO NEW CASES HERE

No fact is better established than that recent successful vaccination protects against smallpox, is the statement made in a current issue of "Ohio's Health," published by the Ohio Department of Health.

The statement is of import in Xenia, where physicians are waging a battle against the spread of smallpox, several cases of which have alarmed health authorities.

JUDGMENT AGAINST FORMER SHERIFF IS REVERSED BY COURT

Judgment of the Court of Common Pleas in the case of Clara Nickell, administratrix of the estate of Volney Nickell, deceased, against Lincoln Funderburgh, former sheriff of Greene County, has been reversed by the Greene County Court of Appeals in a decision received here Tuesday, which remands the action for a new trial in Common Pleas Court.

Judgment in the sum of $5,000 had been awarded the plaintiff in the case against the former sheriff, who appealed from the decision, citing alleged errors in the trial of the case. The decision of the appellate court how wipes aside the verdict given by the jury in the previous case, and the damage action will again have to be tried by a new jury.

The higher court held there was no error apparent in the striking out of part of the answer of the defendant in the admission of the testimony of Roma Humphrey, but alleged error in a clause of the court's charge which read: "I say to you, as a matter of law, the defendant, or none of his posse, had a right under the foregoing circumstances, as officers, to kill Volney Nickell to accomplish his arrest."

The appellate court held that this charge virtually instructed the jury to find the defendant liable as a matter of law leaving only the question of the amount of damages to be determined. The decision holds that this question should have been decided by the jury and that the court was not justified in charging the jury in this manner, as it amounted to an invasion of the legitimate province of the jury. It was on this clause that the judgment was reversed and the cause remanded for a new trial.

The case is a damage action for $25,000 growing out of the death of Volney Nickell when he was shot by an officer while playing with other boys on the Wilmington pike, September 5, 1922. Volney Nickell was instantly killed and his brother, Dorsey Nickell, who also is plaintiff in a damage action against the sheriff, was seriously wounded but recovered. C. L. Darlington of this city and C. J. McTern, Dayton, were attorneys for Mrs. Nickell and Marcus Shoup. D. Smith, C. H. Kyle and F. L. Johnson represented the former sheriff.

ROSS TWP. TEAMS LEAD COUNTY COURT LOOP ALTHOUGH GIRLS DIVIDE HONORS WITH BATH

Ross Township boys and Bath girls retained the leadership of their respective divisions in the County basketball league at the end of six weeks this year.

Ross boys head their division with three games won in as many starts with both Cedarville and Beaver on the heels of the leader with five games won but one dropped.

Bath girls appear to be the class of the girls league despite the fact that Ross girls have yet to lose a game.

Bath girls will have comparatively easy opposition during the remaining games with Jefferson and Jamestown, two notoriously weak aggregations this year.

Ross boys will have harder sledding in their remaining games with Cedarville and Yellow Springs. Cedarville, with only one game lost, is tied for second place, and should furnish real opposition, while Yellow Springs also possesses a strong five.

Ross girls may also be eliminated from any chance to win when Yellow Springs is met.

Games played by Jefferson and Jamestown with league teams may be deducted from the following standing if they are unable to complete their full schedule, according to A. F. Roush, secretary of the league. The standing of both divisions is as follows: Boys:

Team	Won	Lost	Per.
Ross	3	0	1.000
Cedarville	5	1	.833
Beaver	2	2	.500
Yellow Springs	2	3	.400

Spring Valley	1	4	.200
Jamestown	0	2	.000

Boys Division:

Team	W.	L.	Tied	Per.
Bath	3	0	1	1.000
Ross	1	0	1	1.000
Yellow Springs	3	1	0	.750

The First Presbyterians won the championship of the High School League Sunday School basketball teams when they defeated the Second U.P. Monday night at Central Gym by a 12 to 2 score.

The winners exhibited nice form throughout the fray and did not have to stretch themselves to any great extent in coping. The defense they put up was too deep for the Second U.P. as the failed to score from the field. Two fouls, one by R. Hill and the other by H. Hill saved them from a whitewashing.

The first half was close with both teams doing some very close guarding although the Presbyterians were in front by a 1 to 0 score at the half. At the start of the third period Prugh and Clemons made two baskets apiece and clinched the game and pennant for their team.

The Reformed Church had little difficulty in downing the Episcopal team by a 19 to 1 score. This marked the Reformed outfit's first win while it has three defeats. The Episcopal team easily won the bottom position by losing this game.

Routzong was high man with two fielders and three fouls giving him a total of seven points. C. McPherson and Chambliss played well and scored five points apiece. P. McDonnell made his team's only score when he tossed a foul in the third quarter.

FOUR YOUTHS HELD HERE FOLLOWING COLUMBUS ESCAPE.

Four young boys, between the ages of fourteen and sixteen, admittedly escaped inmates of the Columbus institution for the feeble-minded, were arrested Tuesday morning at 1 o'clock on West Third Street by Patrolman Charles Simms. They are being held at Police Headquarters pending the return to the Columbus institution.

They gave their names as Frederick Smith, 14, Cincinnati; Arnold Barhorst, 14, Cincinnati; William Fishburn, 16 Toledo and Enos Wind, 15, Lincoln O.

They admitted escaping from the feeble-minded home Monday noon and said they were headed for Cincinnati. They "beat" their way from Columbus to Xenia.

Barhorst is an old offender at the art of escaping from Columbus, as the police blotter shows he was arrested by local police six months ago on the same charge.

WHO'S WHO AND WHAT'S HAPPENED

CYNTHIA and JIM LELAND, bride and groom, settle in their new home to find that Jim's mother expects to rule their lives. Cynthia rebels: Jim's devotion to his mother blinds him. Cynthia meets

PHIL GRAHAM, an old friend, and invites him home for the night.

TODAY'S INSTALMENT

IX—A FIRM RESOLVE

WHEN Jim came home from his mother's late that night Cynthia pretended to be asleep. Her long evening alone had given her time for many thoughts, and they had all ended in the same conclusion. Jim could not really love her or he would not allow his mother to come between them so frequently.

She had been married so short a time that sometimes even Jim seemed a stranger to her; she could not turn to him frankly now, because she felt so sure that he would see things from his mother's point of view rather than from hers, and she did not know how to put the matter to him differently than she already had, so that he would understand how she felt about it.

She found herself wishing that she knew him as well as she did Phil Graham. Phil understood so perfectly! Perhaps she had made a dreadful mistake, after all, in marrying Jim. Perhaps it would have been better to marry Phil—she didn't love him, to be sure, but they were such good friends!

She lay there quietly, through the long hours of the night, picturing her life as it would have been with Phil. She would have missed much—but how easy that would have been. He hadn't any relatives but his sister, who was already a friend. Phil liked the things she liked. He wouldn't have insisted on the round of social gaieties that Jim seemed to think were necessary. He would understand her so much better!

"Well, it isn't too late yet!" she told herself, trying not to cry as she considered this new possibility. "Phil is fond of me—but I wouldn't want to marry him now. He's a lawyer, though—he could get a divorce for me. Probably Jim would be lots happier without me. He could go back to living with his mother, then, and they both be contented."

But her fighting spirit refused to let her think seriously of leaving her husband so soon, vanquished by his mother. And her sense of fairness aided it. After all, his mother had rights that could not be denied. "It was your son," it said to her, "wouldn't you feel that you ought to be able to depend on him in a time of trouble? Would you want to give him up completely to another woman?"

She went to sleep at last, hurt and bewildered, but resolved to make another try at straightening things out. Never before in her life had things gone wrong with her; petted and pampered, she had always known only the bright side of life until now, and the whole future looked black to her because she did not know how to handle it.

She realized when she woke in the morning to find Jim standing beside her bed that he expected her to be cross with him. Smiling, she lifted her arms and drew him down to the edge of the bed.

"Sorry I was asleep last night, dear," she told him. "I missed you

"Can't you come back again soon?"

house two evenings before, and she had been wishing that she could see Phil again and try to make amends for that occasion.

"I'm leaving town this afternoon," Phil Graham went on, "and I wondered if you wouldn't lunch with me today."

"Oh, of course—I'd love to. Wait a second—" she ran to the desk and picked up her engagement calendar, fearing that there might be some appointment for that noon. But the day was clear, and she hurried back to arrange for meeting him.

She arrived at the restaurant early, to find Phil pacing up and down the small, brilliantly decorated lobby.

"You were as eager as I," she laughed, giving him both hands. "Oh, Phil, I hate to have you leave town. Can't you come back again soon?"

"I can if you want me to, Cynthia," he answered gravely, and when they had seated themselves at a table by the windows he went on. "Remember what I told you the other night—I'll always come to you if you want me to, and if things get too hard for you here you can always come to me."

Cynthia smiled, wistfully. And then, glancing up, she beheld Madame Leland at a neighboring table. Her heart sank, as her mother-in-law favored her with a gracious nod.

Tonight—A Difficult Situation.

Thousands Dangerously Weak After Flu and Grippe

Tells How To Quickly Get Back Needed Strength, Appetite and Vitality.

Reports tell us that in one state tens of thousands of people are all too slowly regaining their health and strength after illness.

Influenza and Grippe are insidious diseases, that nine times out of ten strip their victims of strength, vitality and power to endure any ordinary strain.

Even a heavy cold or a lingering cough may sap a man's strength so tremendously that he despairs of ever being strong enough to go to work again.

People in this deplorable condition should know that the greatest builder of strength in weak, rundown, tired out people is Cod Liver Oil—it's full of the best health building vitamins, as any doctor or chemist will tell you.

But it's loathsome stuff to take—the taste nauseates—the smell disgusts and repulses.

That's why millions of people are turning to cod liver oil in tablet form.

That's why physicians and pharmacists in all parts of the country and even in Canada are advising sick, weak, rundown folks to take McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound.

They helped millions of ill, weak, despairing folks last year—they will do the same for millions more this year.

To people who are exhausted or weary—who are languid and indolent—who haven't the vigor or energy or the endurance needed to do their work properly we say:

Try McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets for 30 days—then if you don't say they are the best builder of health and strength you ever used, get your money back from Sayre & Hemphill, H. C. Sohn, or the druggist from whom you bought them.

60 tablets, 60 cents—but be sure and get McCoy's—the original and genuine.

AILMENTS OF YOUNG GIRLS

Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound School Teacher's Experience

Evanston, Wyoming.—"A few years ago I had troubles every month such as girls often have, and would suffer awfully every time. I was teaching school and it made it hard for me as I had to go to bed for two or three days. One day my mother suggested that I take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which I did, and it did wonders for me. In the course of a year I married and after my first baby was born I got up too soon and it caused a displacement. This troubled me so that I could hardly walk or do my housework. I knew what the Vegetable Compound did for me before so I took it again. It strengthened me and now I have five little kiddies. The eldest is six, the baby is five months old and I have twin boys three years old and a boy of five years. I do all my own housework, washing and ironing, and I never felt better in my life. I owe my health to your wonderful medicine and I recommend it to all my friends"—Mrs. VERBENA CARPENTER, 127 2nd Avenue, Evanston, Wyoming.

MILITARY COURT PROBES CAVE STORY

OPEN HEARING
BEGINS WHILE
SHAFT IS SUNK

Radio Tests Show Collins
May Still Be Rescued
Alive.

Cave City, Ky., Feb. 10.—Under executive order of Governor William J. Fields, public sessions of the military court opened here today to inquire into the circumstances surrounding the attempted rescue of Floyd Collins from Sand Cave where he has been imprisoned since Friday, January 30.

This is a morale-building move. Since rumors first began to circulate freely as to incidents occurring during the early days of the finding of Floyd's entombment, it has become apparent that some action to allay the suspicions of the public as to the facts in the case was essential. It was this point in view that the military tribunal, which might sit in secret sessions as a grand jury does, obtained permission to make its investigations a public hearing.

Meantime hope that the shaft, the last resort, would reach Collins before his death, was visibly shaken today when efforts to find another entryway into the passage where he lies in a rock-shroud, became frenzied in their intensity. The shaft has been sunk about 35 feet with approximately as much still to be excavated. Workers were disheartened with the maddening slowness. Radio tests were taken recently, as much as to encourage those laboring as to determine whether Collins is still living.

These tests, according to experts and physicians, indicated that despite long imprisonment Collins may yet be rescued alive.

Work on the shaft was pressed with all possible speed, however, but the cry of those in the pit is "We want Floyd Collins, alive!"

Hence, each new fissure unearthed, raises the hopes of the diggers. And, as each proves to be only a crack of a fault, the despondency deepens. In the military tribunal, all witnesses save one—and that one singled out by hearsay and circumstances as the person most vitally concerned—were called to tell of their entry into the cave. Several, among them Lieutenant Robert Burden of the Louisville fire department, William Burke Miller, newspaper reporter, and Homer Collins, Floyd's brother, were to tell of their conversations with Floyd and the conditions of the narrow passage way during their various trips.

But John Gerald, the man who assumed control of the rescue work because of his asserted friendship with the entombed man, will not be asked to come before the court and give his version of the entire affair. And neither will he have an opportunity to reply to the various accusations against him.

The reason for this, it was said, was because Gerald would be the principal witness and the most important factor in the clearing of the air of insinuations that Collins was a victim not only of nature's wrath, but of man's greed as well, was suggested in the statement of Lieut. Gov. H. H. Denhardt that no person is "called before a court to testify against himself."

While the first organization and hearings are being held in Cave City, the inquiry court will adjourn later to the rim of the pit where the work of digging for a still presumed living man continues, and complete its sessions in the grim shadows of hoisting derrick and screeching drill.

The native is truculent and resentful of the drama which has made his country the focal point for a world's eyes. Owing to the misunderstanding of the functions of the military court, the conception has rapidly grown that every man and woman is going to find himself or herself in jail in short order.

Somehow the fact that Collins lies buried and perhaps still alive no longer holds its original potency. The catatonic emotion has become only a ripple of mild interest.

The hill folk have had all they wanted of new fangled notions and habits. They want to settle down to their routine of work and leisure. To the impenetrable non-communion between individuals everything has become too involved.

What, with soldiers walking guard beneath their moon, and on their hillsides, what with speed where only a slow gait previously had been necessary, the natives are growing exceedingly restless and unhappy.

Yes, they wish it was over. Certainly hoping that Floyd is found alive—but over at any cost.

PRISONERS WILL TESTIFY IN TRIAL OF ATLANTA WARDEN

Former Chaplain Is Questioned On Stand For Full Day.

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 10—Prisoners of the U. S. penitentiary here, who are alleged by the government to have given bribes in return for special favors were to take the stand today in the second day of the trial of A. E. Sartain, former warden; L. J. Fletcher, formerly his assistant, and Heine Riehl, on charges of soliciting bribes.

The testimony of these men will follow a day of testimony from Rev. Thomas P. Hayden, formerly chaplain at the prison, in which he testified to having received $2,100 of one bribe paid by a group of bootleggers sent to the prison from Savannah.

Father Hayden testified he arranged for a meeting between Will Haar, one of the prisoners, before the convicted men ever were sent here. It was understood, he said, that the men were to be allowed special kitchen privileges and were to have the softest jobs that could be found for them.

One of them, he said, was to be assigned to his office. Haar told him, he said, that the group of Savannah men were especially desirous of escaping confinement in cells.

Washington, Feb. 10—Having al-at $1,605,000,000 from the United States last year and sold to us commodities valued at $765,543,000.

Because of a different basis of calculation of values, the department explained that a considerable sum must be added to American imports to make them comparable with those of Britain. It was also pointed out that if re-exports of imported goods be deducted the excess of American over British exports would be greater and the excess of British over American exports less.

Compared with 1913, the gold value of British imports in 1924 showed an increase of 51 per cent and that of exports 34 per cent," the department said.

"The imports of the U. S. in the same period increased 101 per cent in value and exports 85 per cent."

The volume of British imports was practically the same in 1924 as in 1913, while exports declined about one fifth. Greater values were due to price boosts. American imports and exports increased materially in volume.

"The explanation of the surplus over imports in the United States lies chiefly in the fact that this country sends large sums abroad to pay for tourist expenses, immigrant remittances and heavy exports of capital," the department said.

"The British surplus of imports is explained by the large amount foreigners must pay for British shipping service and for interest and dividends on the large British investment abroad.

Doctors fees $50; nurses salary $30; baby's layette $15; cape $19; white corduroy coat $1.50; bonnet 75¢; 12 pairs of stockings $3; two pairs of shoes $2; four shirts $3; girl robe 75¢; four flannel bands $1.60; white dresses $1.25; crib $5; milk $3.60 and oatmeal $4, a total of $40 for food.

SOLUTION IS NEARER IN O. S. U. POISON CASE

Congress Split Over Aircraft Battle

MITCHELL MADE TARGET OF HOT VERBAL ATTACK

Naval Affairs Committee Takes Hand In Controversy Now

Washington, Feb. 10—Congress took sides today and flung itself anew into the aircraft "battle" started by Brigadier General William Mitchell's charges against the war and navy departments.

While the house aircraft investigating committee before which the "flying general" testified, was preparing to come to his defense a verbal bomb was flung in his direction at a meeting of the house naval affairs committee.

The naval committee was drawn into the fight by Representative Britten of Illinois, who followed a vigorous defense of Admiral Moffet, the naval flying chief, by charging Mitchell with "very bad form" in attacking officials of the navy department.

"Mitchell," said Britten, "is an outstanding figure, but he doesn't know it all and the quicker he realizes it the better for aviation."

"I have no objection to Mitchell telling all he knows about aviation generally and about the war department and army officers in particular, but I think his reference to the veracity of naval officers and their intimidation by their superiors came in very bad form and will do him no good."

Britten took a swing at the army general's pet hobby of a unified air service, consideration of which by congress has stirred up the present fuss.

"Mitchell is confusing aviation efficiency with national defense," Britten said, "and while his suggestion for a unified service might promote efficiency in some directions, it would tend to destroy offensive and defensive action in a highly specialized department like the navy."

"The national defense is of much greater importance than increased efficiency in delivering mail by air or by promotion of commercial aviation."

Britten's attack stirred up new agitation in the aircraft committee for passage of a resolution which would absolve Mitchell from all blame for any statements he made reflecting on other government officials.

The committee is expected to pass a resolution now being drafted by one member, which would shift responsibility for Mitchell's statements from the "flying general" to the committee it self.

HOSPITAL IS NOW THE PROPERTY OF CLARK CO. ALONE

County Auditor R. O. Wead, went to Springfield Monday for the purpose of signing the deed that will complete Greene County's share in the transfer of the Tubercular Hospital of Springfield to Clark County. Greene County received $7,965.61 as its share in the institution.

By mutual agreement the ownership of the hospital, until recently jointly owned by Greene, Clark, Madison, and Champaign Counties, was deeded over to Clark County, at a recent meeting of commissioners from each county.

"The transfer will benefit Greene County from an economics standpoint," said Herman Eavey, president of the board of commissioners and the release of the hospital to Clark County, in which it is situated, will be a financial burden off the county's shoulders.

"Clark County is more benefitted by the hospital than any of the adjacent counties, as more patients come from that county, which is another reason why the move is justified," said Mr. Eavey.

DISCIPLESHIP IS MISSION BISHOP REESE SAYS HERE

The Rt. Rev. Theodore Irving Reese, assistant auditor bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Southern Ohio, delivered a strong sermon on the word of Christ: "Follow Me" on the occasion of his visit to Christ Episcopal Church here Sunday to confirm a class of candidates in the church.

"In order to follow Christ and 'be loyal to the end' you must lose yourself to a cause—completely enveloped by this purpose," he said. "Now in order to more thoroughly understand this statement let me say that there are two kinds of causes—the good cause and the evil cause. As an example let us take the Cross itself. The geometrical definition of a Cross is two lines that form an intersection. Let us consider the causes as the two lines. They intersect in the form of a cross. They conflict. Where they conflict is the point of suffering hardship and temptation. Which cause is going to be victorious in our lives? The evil cause or the good cause?"

"Discipleship—that is our mission in life and we can take up this profession in life only by 'losing ourselves' in the cause of Christ. Do not think that we must lose ourselves only in the Church but there are four institutions in which we must be enveloped. They are four of the greatest institutions in the world: the HOME; the home is not the place to feel that you are 'it' that there is no one else but you and that every other member of the family should bow down to you and jump at your bidding. That is the opinion of people in lots of families with whom I have been acquainted. There are others in this world you must think about. The home life should be the greatest life on earth—but how often we find it otherwise. In some homes there is the person whose wishes and desires must be fulfilled without a thought as to the wants of the other person. That is not discipleship. Start in the home, start tomorrow and change your home into one of peace and happiness where the body and soul can rest at peace."

"Then there is the School—a great institution, and the nation. Here we might relate the story of the unknown soldier, one of the greatest stories the world will ever know. His leader said, 'Follow me' and he did. He gave his last full measure of devotion." Such is discipleship. There was patriotism. The nation depended upon him "to follow" and he obeyed.

"And lastly we have the Church again. Here we must have fellowship and loyalty above all things, to promote the kingdom of God. He has entrusted to us a mission of earth and we must not betray Him. We must follow for those are His words. This does not mean that we follow Him only through the gardens of Gallilee, and beside the beautiful waters to gaze at the gorgeousness of the sunrise and sunset; we must follow Him through the mountains and through the dark places, over treacherous slimy rocks, through the caverns and the dens of wild beasts, through temptation and sin we must follow Him for He is the Great Leader. This is the acid test of discipleship. Can we follow where He leads? It is easy to follow as long as the path is level and soft under foot but when the patch is rocky and the crevices treacherous, how many can keep pace? How many fall by the wayside no longer able to follow? How many fear death because they could not follow? Happy is he who can lie on his death bed and face death with serenity, a smile on his face and with the words, "Father, I am ready," because he has been loyal to the end."

"I am going to use a baseball expression to illustrate our church people of today—the Christians and those people who start to "follow." We have a man at bat. He hits the ball and sends it flying across the field. He reaches first base easily and is enthused over his run. He gets exalted and a little bigheaded. Then he steals second and after a while slides to third and then—? What I wanted you to notice was the word slide. Too many people slide where they should walk. That is the trouble with our church goers. At first they are regular attendants, for a couple of services and then they apparently think that they have received all the blessings they can possibly get and begin to slide. They no longer follow. And that is not the kind of a disciple that He wants. He must be loyal to the end."

"One man said to me once, 'Well, if there could be some way to condense Christianity into one, two or three items it would be easier.' That man never knew what Christianity was or he could never have asked me anything so absurd. Christianity is condensed—always has been condensed into two of the greatest words known—"Follow Me."

VACCINATION ONLY SUCCESSFUL MEANS OF FIGHTING SMALL POX—TWO NEW CASES HERE

No fact is better established than that recent successful vaccination protects against smallpox, is the statement made in a current issue of "Ohio's Health," published by the Ohio Department of Health.

The statement is of import in Xenia, where physicians are waging a battle against the spread of smallpox, several cases of which have alarmed health authorities.

JUDGMENT AGAINST FORMER SHERIFF IS REVERSED BY COURT

Judgment of the Court of Common Pleas in the case of Clara Nickell, administratrix of the estate of Volney Nickell, deceased against Lincoln Funderburgh, former sheriff of Greene County, has been reversed by the Greene County Court of Appeals in a decision received here Tuesday, which remands the action for a new trial in Common Pleas Court.

Judgment in the sum of $5,000 had been awarded the plaintiff in the case against the former sheriff, who appealed from the decision, citing alleged errors in the trial of the case. The decision of the appellate court now wipes aside the verdict given by the jury in the previous case, and the damage action will again have to be tried by a new jury.

The higher court held there was no error apparent in the striking out of part of the answer of the defendant nor in the admission of the testimony of Roma Humphrey, but alleged error in a clause of the court's charge which read: "I say to you, as a matter of law, the defendant, or none of his posse, had a right under the foregoing circumstances, as officers, to kill Volney Nickell to accomplish his arrest."

The appellate court held that this charge virtually instructed the jury to find the defendant liable as a matter of law leaving only the question of the amount of damages to be determined. The decision holds that this question should have been decided by the jury and that the court was not justified in charging the jury in this manner, as it amounted to an invasion of the legitimate province of the jury. It was on this clause that the judgment was reversed and the cause remanded for a new trial.

The case is a damage action for $25,000 growing out of the death of Volney Nickell when he was shot by an officer while playing with other boys on the Wilmington pike, September 5, 1922. Volney Nickell was instantly killed and his brother, Dorsey Nickell, who also is plaintiff in a damage action against the sheriff, was seriously wounded but recovered.

C. L. Darlington of this city and C. J. McMinn, Dayton were attorneys for Mrs. Nickell and Marcus Shoup, Harry D. Smith, C. H. Kyle and F. L. Johnson represented the former sheriff.

The epidemic of small pox in Detroit several months ago, showed that no individual vaccinated successfully within five years contracted smallpox, regardless of the type of disease to which he was exposed, the article goes on to say. Of those whose vaccination was older than five years a few contracted modified smallpox.

Nearly a quarter of the population of Detroit was vaccinated prior to the virulent epidemic, which was preceded by a mild epidemic. This did not serve to protect the community although it did protect absolutely the vaccinated individuals.

Only those school children con-

THIRTEEN CASES

The number of smallpox cases in Xenia city was raised to thirteen, with the report of two new cases to Dr. R. H. Grube, health commissioner, Tuesday morning.

Xenia physicians are being kept busy vaccinating school children and others who are eagerly taking this precaution against contraction or spread of the disease.

Doctors are confident that the general public will accept the vaccination order without question. School children will be barred from their class room until they have been vaccinated and this order will result in a general immunity, it is thought.

PRESBYTERIANS WIN LEAGUE TITLE BY VICTORY MONDAY

By L. J. WONES

The First Presbyterians won the championship of the High School Sunday School basketball teams when they defeated the Second U.P. Monday night at Central Gym by a 12 to 2 score.

The winners exhibited nice form throughout the fray and did not have to stretch themselves to any great extent in coping. The defense they put up was too deep for the Second U.P. as the failed to score from the field. Two fouls, one by R. Hill and the other by H. Hill saved them from a whitewashing.

The first half was close with both teams doing some very close guarding although the Presbyterians were in front by a 4 to 0 score at the half. At the start of the third period Prugh and Clemmons made two baskets apiece and clinched the game and pennant for their team.

The Reformed Church had little difficulty in downing the Episcopal team by a 19 to 1 score. This marked the Reformed outfit's first win while it has three defeats. The Episcopal team easily won the bottom position by losing this game.

Routzong was high man with two fielders and three fouls giving him a total of seven points. C. McPherson and Chambliss played well and scored five points apiece. P. McDonnell made his team's only score when he tossed a foul in the third quarter.

How To Tell a Woman's Age By Her Hands

A noted beauty specialist recently said that she could invariably judge a woman's age by her hands. Worry and hard work often shows in the face. For this reason more attention should be given to the hands as they are really the true marks of refinement and the tellers of our age. Any woman can have beautiful, white, soft, pretty hands, regardless of the work she has to do, if she will simply spend a minute or two just before retiring, rubbing a little plain ice-mint on them. In the morning she will be greatly surprised at the pleasant transformation that has been wrought by even a single application. Ice-mint is made from a Japanese product that is simply marvelous for its beautifying properties whether used on the hands or face. Regardless of what kind of work a woman does, she should have pretty hands. As the hands, if neglected, are bound to show the hard work and worry of our lives. A few applications will actually make any woman proud of her hands and skin. Ice-mint costs little and is sold and recommended by good druggists everywhere.

HOW TO PREPARE A STEAK!

A good woman from Spring Valley says she wonders if I can help her out with a recipe on how to prepare a steak. So with your kind permission, I will proceed to tell the lady how to do it. First, get the steak in the kitchen, lay it gently on the sink, let it stand in running water for three hours and let the cat stand outside in the rain for three hours. Hunt up a pair of old brogans. Take off your slippers, which no doubt are too small for you, and get into the "tug boats."

The remaining task is very simple. Take the fire shovel, pitchfork, or broom handle, and, being careful not to touch it with human hands, lay the steak on the kitchen linoleum. Now do the Highland Fling in 27 counts, being careful each time to make your descension upon the steak. If your husband or a gossipy neighbor woman happens to be near, it might be handy to have him or her count for you. One Zimmerman lady trained her parrot to do the counting.

After the steak is well nigh knocked to pieces, still being careful not to touch it with human hands, pick it up with a lawn rake and drop it into the flour barrel. Roll it around for 15 minutes and then give it a ride over to Dayton in a Ford so that all the flour will be shaken out of it.

Now it will be ready for frying. Being careful not to touch it with human hands, lay it in the skillet and add two tablespoons of castor oil, one cup of axle grease, two potatoes and a sprinkling of lime. When the lime gets in the potatoes eyes take them out and wipe them with a towel.

After the steak has fried for some three hours, cut into pieces with a double-bit ax. Serve with apple butter and celery before meals. Two pieces at bedtime.

WHO'S WHO AND WHAT'S HAPPENED

CYNTHIA and JIM LELAND, bride and groom, settle in their new home to find that Jim's mother expects to rule their lives. Cynthia rebels; Jim's devotion to his mother blinds him. Cynthia meets PHIL GRAHAM, an old friend, and invites him home for the night.

TODAY'S INSTALMENT

IX—A FIRM RESOLVE

WHEN Jim came home from his mother's late that night Cynthia pretended to be asleep. Her long evening dreadfully all evening." His relief was plainly apparent. "Couldn't get home any sooner, though I tried," he told her. "You see, mother made some investments while you and I were on our honeymoon that really were not good ones, and now the stock she bought has gone down in a hurry, and it means money. She's dreadfully worried, of course. I may have to take a western trip soon, and if I do I'll look into the matter at its source. Meanwhile try to be especially considerate of her, won't you, dear?" Cynthia promised, wondering how much more considerate anyone could be than she had been. But she kept that thought to herself.

She was writing letters in the sun parlor, an hour later, when the telephone rang. For a moment she was tempted not to answer it. Her mother-in-law usually phoned her at this hour of the morning, and she had no desire to talk with Madame Leland. But its persistent jangling finally broke down her resolve, and she picked up the receiver and laudily murmured, "Hello."

"Hello! Mrs. Leland? This is Phil, Cynthia!" She almost shouted with joy. Jim and she had said very little about Graham's sudden departure from the

Jim seemed a stranger to her; she could not turn to him frankly now, because she felt so sure that he would see things from his mother's point of view rather than from hers, and she did not know how to put the matter to him differently than she already had, so that he would understand how she felt about it.

She knew herself wishing that she knew him as well as she did Phil. Phil understood so perfectly! Perhaps she had made a dreadful mistake, after all, in marrying Jim. Perhaps it would have been better to marry Phil—she didn't love him, to be sure, but they were such good friends!

She lay there quietly, through the long hours of the night, picturing her life as it would have been with Phil. She would have missed much—but how easy this would have been. He hadn't any relatives but his sister, who was already a friend. Phil liked the things she liked. He wouldn't have insisted on the round of social gaieties that Jim seemed to think were necessary. He would have understood her so much better!

"Well, it isn't too late yet!" she told herself, trying not to cry as she considered this new possibility. "Phil is fond of me—but I wouldn't want to marry him now. He's a lawyer, though—he could get a divorce for me. Probably Jim would be lots happier without me. He could go back to living with his mother, then, and they both be contented."

But her fighting spirit refused to let her think seriously of leaving her husband so soon, vanquished by his mother. And her sense of fairness aided it. After all, his mother had rights that could not be denied. "If it was your son," it said to her, "wouldn't you feel that you ought to be able to depend on him in a time of trouble? Would you want to give him up completely to another woman?"

She went to sleep at last, hurt and bewildered, but resolved to make another try at straightening things out. Never before in her life had things gone wrong with her; patted and pampered, she had always known only the bright side of life until now, and the whole future looked black to her because she did not know how to handle it.

She realized when she woke in the morning to find Jim standing beside her bed that he expected her to be cross with him. Smiling, she lifted her arms and drew him down to the edge of the bed.

"Sorry I was asleep last night, dear," she told him. "I missed you

house two evenings before, and she had been wishing that she could see Phil again and try to make amends for that occasion.

"I'm leaving town this afternoon," Phil Graham went on, "and I wondered if you would lunch with me today."

"Oh, of course—I'd love to. Wait a second—" she ran to the desk and picked up her engagement calendar, fearing that there might be some appointment for that noon. But the day was clear, and she hurried back to arrange for meeting him.

She arrived at the restaurant early, to find Phil pacing up and down the small, brilliantly decorated lobby.

"You were as eager as I," she laughed, giving him both hands.

"Oh, Phil, I hate to have you leave town. Can't you come back again soon?"

"I can if you want me to, Cynthia," he answered gravely, and when they had seated themselves at the table by the windows he went on. "Remember what I told you the other night—I'll always come to you if you want me to, and if things get too hard for you here you can always come to me."

Cynthia smiled, wistfully, and then, glancing up, she beheld Madame Leland at a neighboring table. Her heart sank, as her mother-in-law favored her with a gracious nod.

Tomorrow—A Difficult Situation.

Thousands Dangerously Weak After Flu and Grippe

Tells How To Quickly Get Back Needed Strength, Appetite and Vitality.

Reports tell us that in one state tens of thousands of people are "all too slowly" regaining their health and strength after illness.

Influenza and Grippe are insidious diseases, that nine times out of ten strip their victims of strength, vitality and power to endure any ordinary strain.

Even a heavy cold or a lingering cough may sap a man's strength so tremendously that he despairs of ever being strong enough to go to work again.

People in this deplorable condition should know that the greatest builder of strength is weak, rundown, tired out people is Cod Liver Oil—it's full of the best health building vitamins, as any doctor or chemist will tell you.

But it's loathsome stuff to take—the taste nauseates—the smell disgusts and repulses.

That's why millions of people are turning to cod liver oil in tablet form.

AILMENTS OF YOUNG GIRLS

Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound School Teacher's Experience

Evanston, Wyoming.—"A few years ago I had troubles every month such as girls often have, and would suffer awfully every time. I was teaching school and it made it hard for me as I had to go to bed for two or three days. One day my mother suggested that I take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which I did, and it did wonders for me. In the course of a year I married and after my first baby was born I got up too soon and it caused a displacement. This troubled me so that I could hardly walk or do my housework. I knew what the Vegetable Compound did for me before so I took it again. It strengthened me and now I have five little kiddies. The eldest is six, the baby is five months old and I have twin boys three years old and a boy of five years. I do all my own housework, washing and ironing, and I never felt better in my life. I owe my health to your wonderful medicine and I recommend it to all my friends."—Mrs. VERBENA CARPENTER, 127 2nd Avenue, Evanston, Wyoming.
